Area Summary

Debach is a small and rural parish in Suffolk Coastal, four miles north-west of Woodbridge.

The area is best known for its airfield which was active during world war two and has a strong American connection. The airfield has since been converted for industrial use and houses an aviation museum.

The majority of the housing in Debach sits along Woodbridge Road. The parish church was sold in the 1970s for private use and has remained as such since then.

The parish has established a new village green (by the village sign) that hosts local events throughout the year.
