

Kenton

Parish Code: E04009220

Area Summary

Kenton is a small village and civil parish in Mid Suffolk to the north-east of Debenham.

The rurality and scale of the parish means there are very few community assets.

Kenton is probably most notable for the 'Kenton Hall Estate' in the south-east corner of the parish. The estate has a diverse range of functions that includes wedding venue hire, camping facilities, a cookery school and a produce farm.

The village centre is located by the parish church towards the north of the parish. The population of the parish has increased in recent years following the construction of several modern houses.

Kenton has drawn some press attention for its unusual polling station. The lack of any nearby community buildings means that locals get to cast their vote in a caravan, which means it is likely to be one of smallest in the country.
