

Little Bealings

Parish Code: E04009431

Area Summary

Little Bealings is a village and civil parish that sits west of the A12 between Ipswich and Woodbridge in Suffolk Coastal. The smaller settlement of Great Bealings can be found to the north; an area it shares many of its community assets with.

The village contains a number of community assets that are well used by locals. The village hall is next to a recently-developed and well equipped playing field.

Next to the parish church is the Angela Cobbald Hall that hosts some activities but there is some uncertainty about its future due the on-going cost of maintenance.

The village retains a primary school for around 100 pupils, although other provisions such as the village pub and railway station are no longer in use. The station building has, however, been recovered for use as office space.

The proximity to Ipswich and the A12 makes Little Bealings an attractive place to live and work, with access to other amenities for those able to travel.
