

Raydon

Parish Code: E04009118

Area Summary

Raydon is a village and civil parish in Babergh that sits just a couple of miles south of Hadleigh and north of the A12.

The parish is on the eastern edge of the Dedham Vale Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty (AONB).

In the centre of the village you will find Raydon's substantial village hall which is in close proximity to the parish church of St Mary.

At the southern edge of the village is King George's Field which also features a pavilion building.

The vast majority of the settlement in Raydon is found in the village itself although there is a small hamlet called Lower Raydon in the west of the parish.

The far east of the parish is occupied by Raydon's former RAF airfield which is now predominantly given over to industrial units.
