

Ubbeston

Parish Code: E04009416

Area Summary

Ubbeston is a very small and sparsely populated parish in Suffolk Coastal. Most of the residential properties are split between Ubbeston and Ubbeston Green with the rest scattered across a patchwork of farmland.

The parish has very little in the way of community assets or local services within the parish boundary. The parish church was sold off several decades ago and has since been converted for private use.

The parish shares a recently built village hall with Heveningham and Huntingfield although the building itself is in Huntingfield.

The parish has a long and well documented history. The village sign features a Viking ship which is said to have sailed along the River Blyth to Ubbeston.
